WAS IN THICKEST FIGHTING

Efficiency of the Y. M. C. A. Work
Is Praised by Texan Who Now Lives in Tulsa.

A. F. Vasey, well known among oil men of Texas four years ago, arrived in Tulsa Monday night, where he will take up the oil business after having spent four years of active service overseas with the Canadian army and in American and Canadian armies.

Y. M. C. A. When Canada entered the war Vasey gave up his oil business and left for Canada, where he enlisted in the 14th regiment, with the 49th Canadian regiment. He enlisted as being 18 years of age, the age limit being 20.

On May 29, 1915, he sailed with his regiment for France and was immediately sent to the front line, being in the battles of Armentières, Vimy, Poelcappelle and Belleau wood. He was wounded twice by machine gun bullets and was granted leave to one of the Canadian base hospitals. On his recovery he unwittingly found that he was born in 1888 and was discharged as being over the age limit and sent back to the states.

After his arrival in this country he applied for work with the Y. M. C. A. forces and was accepted and arrived in France for the second time February 22, 1918. He was assigned to the 42nd division and later was assigned to the 150th machine gun battalion and went with the outfit to Chateau-Thierry. On Tuesday of the second week the large battle of the division was fought resulting in 35 per cent of the 150th machine gun battalion being killed or wounded.

When asked about the efficiency of the Y. M. C. A. service overseas, Vasey said:

"It was impossible to get the food and other equipment up to the front in some places. All the trucks that were owned by the Y. M. C. A. were also used by the government and we were in a position that we were unable to bring in the necessary equipment during the year and it is certain that the Y. M. C. A. could do nothing that the government could not do."

In several sectors where our men were fighting the boys lived on hard tack and bully beef. All this was before the first of August, 1918; after that time we were able to get equipment and material at Belcourt wood, where the hardest fighting was going on. I know that the boys were given hot chocolate and food every morning and night 18 days out of 21, because I was in the front line getting the food to them.

"There has been a large amount talk about the high price at the Y. M. C. A. canteens. We were charging more than the government, but that was due to the high freight rates which we had to pay. After August the government arranged to furnish us with cigarettes and supplies and we sold them at the wholesale price we paid in the United States."

HEIFETZ CHARMS BIG AUDIENCE WITH VIOLIN

With the technical perfectness of a violinist, the abandon of a Kreisler and the soul of an Elman, Jascha Heifetz charmed a phenomenal audience at convention hall last night. Without affectation or display he maintained superb poise and achieved a striking style. Up to date he is the season's sensation. Lacking in some degree the sonority of the violin virtuosos, Heifetz possesses a sweetness and purity of quality that is in a class by itself. He stands alone in this absolute perfection.

Assumed Government.

BELGIAN COMMISSION COMES TO AGREEMENT

Decision Will Be Submitted to Supreme Council When It Comes—Related to Old Treaty.

PARIS, March 4.—The peace conference commission on Belgian affairs at its session today reached a decision regarding solution of the question of the revision of the treaty of 1839, which finally brought peace between Holland and Belgium. The decision will be submitted later to the supreme council.

The economic and financial commissions will soon be added to the peace conference organization. The commission will comprise two members from the great powers and five members from the minor powers combined.

The economic commission will take up the subjects of customs regulation, the revision of the commercial treaties between citizens of enemy countries and those of the central powers, the status of enemy citizens in allied countries and the pace of the commercial treaties made before the war.

The task of the financial commission will be to decide how the enemy countries shall pay their debts, how the paper money shall be accounted among the enemy countries who have outstanding claims as the result of the peace treaty, and what disposition shall be made of the paper money now in circulation. It will also frame an agreement as to interallied exchange, study measures for the protection of the financial interests of the allies in enemy countries and consider the elimination of enemy nations from international financial arrangements such as exist in China, Turkey and Greece.

None of the delegates of the minor powers at the meeting brought in any point representations to the new commission declined to accept that proposal that the minor powers have only five representatives.

Cotton futures rider to the grain and wheat price bill, which was signed today by President Wilson, becomes effective tonight at midnight. Under it only 13 grades of cotton from low middling up can be delivered on future contracts and all cotton delivered must be classified by government graders.

A modified copy of the bill has been perfected in England for making aeroplane propellers.
